

DALY CITY THEATRE THE FULFILLMENT OF MUNICIPAL AMBITION

For the last several months residents of this city and observant people riding along Mission highway have watched with increasing interest the rising architectural structure at the famous corner. Now it is almost completed and its electric sign above its highest point, seeming up in the sky, proclaims to the world "Daly City Theatre."

First our public schools were our landmarks, next arose our city hall, next the church on the hill, but now the magnificent, imposing place of amusement takes the position of greatest prominence.

The course of development here indicated is eminently the right order. It was a becoming necessity to provide generously for the education of the rising generation. A place to house our local government and its representatives still has a general appeal and support. No community can ever be quite satisfactory in its success without providing for the spiritual needs of its people. When the education, the government, and the religion of a city have been accorded their prior importance, then it is decided in order that the people's love of art, beauty, comedy and entertainment of every wholesome description should be recognized to the fullest extent, and the Daly City Theatre has been erected to supply this need.

In the first place it is now and ever shall be an ornament to our city, marking the zenith of our municipal ambition. Inside as well as outside it will compare advantageously with any other of the artistic and commodious theatrical edifices of the cities of the Peninsula, and that is saying considerable for the chain of theatres alluded to is admittedly wonderful.

The stage of the Daly City Theatre is very large, sufficiently so to meet the most unusual demands. The curtain space appears to one in much the same way, extensive enough so that it will never be found limited.

The auditorium is marvelously convenient in every detail. The floor is inclined at such an angle that the occupants of every seat will have always an unobstructed view of the curtain and stage. On the right, the left, and behind there is no monotony of blank walls. Instead, set-in, perspective pictures, each a work of artistic merit, meets, holds and charms the vision no matter which way you turn.

The ventilation has been considered so well that the feeling that you are in a country garden in springtime comes over one as he occupies one of the seats.

Like the stage and the curtain space the auditorium is capacious to the extent of seating without the slightest congestion the unexpected largest assemblage.

The seats are dignified and comfortable. To sit in any of them is at once an honor and a pleasure.

In the many evenings of the years to come, what comfort and entertainment our people will enjoy as they sit in such delightful surroundings, listening to pleasing music, viewing an entrancing moving picture, or witnessing a comedy providing gusts of laughter, or a drama moving to tears or uplifting the spirit to the highest degree of unselfish or patriotic effort.

When the hours of freedom come to us—when, peradventure, we would forget for a time troublesome cares, we shall leave everything behind us, and enter this edifice of comfort and partake of the innumerable charms designed to encompass each of us in an atmosphere of real ecstasy; then a feeling of gratefulness will come over those who have contemplative minds for the one who first dreamed that we might have, right at our door, the Daly City Theatre.

What has caused this enterprise to become a reality? The gradual but steady growth of our city for the twenty years of its existence had much to do with it. Every contractor that built a new home within our jurisdiction helped to some extent. The man or woman who by self-denial accumulated savings ample to purchase a home and become one of our residents did his or her part. Each official of our city government who tried to do his duty well and honestly made a veritable contribution. The priest or the minister who strove zealously to improve the moral standing of his flock gave encouragement. Every teacher striving patiently and persistently to advance in learning those entrusted to her care gave hopes to the original dreamer. The writer who recognized and recorded the march of progress helped to make this dream come true.

But the greatest contributing cause of the success of the enterprise was the faith of all the people in the present and the future of our city. It has been established beyond all doubt that this is a good place in which to

CITY IN DARKNESS RESULT OF STORM

The torrential rainstorm of last Tuesday evening caused a great deal of inconvenience in Daly City, but no great property damage.

A large number of homes were in darkness about 6 o'clock, when the electric light failed to function, and there was a general searching for candles and the long-forgotten oil lamps, that the families might enjoy their evening meal. This condition of darkness continued until about 10 o'clock, causing a number of social functions to be postponed, and playing havoc with the plans of those who had tasks to perform in the evening.

In spite of the inconvenience, there is general rejoicing, however, at the coming of the wet season, as rain has been greatly needed for some time.

In San Francisco a number of stores were flooded, sewers overflowed, trees were uprooted as a result of the terrific gale, telephone poles were blown down, and power lines broken.

The storm plunged half the city of Oakland into darkness through the breaking of high tension power wires. It crippled ferry traffic and temporarily halted electric train service in the East Bay district.

On the bay shipping was endangered, while along the coast outside the heads the gale lashed with such fury that it drove four ships into port for shelter after they had left on scheduled trips earlier in the day.

SEEKS TO COLLECT $25,000 FOR INJURIES IN CRASH

Hazel Milo, aged 17, seeks to collect $25,000, plus the costs of the suit, from Leland S. Prior and Harry Deller, for alleged injuries sustained in an automobile collision at El Camino Real and Fair Oaks Lane, on November 18, 1927, according to a complaint filed last Monday in the county clerk's office in Redwood City.

The complaint alleges that Miss Milo was the guest of Deller in his car at the time of the collision, and Prior was the driver of the other car. She claims that she is permanently disfigured about the face and body, as a result of the accident. A. Milo, whom the court recently appointed Miss Milo's temporary guardian, filed the suit.

We have still three Sundays in which to compete in the contest with eight other Sunday schools. We have won the banner for four consecutive Sundays. live and be contented. That's why the Daly City Theatre has become a reality.

With all the general encouragement, still it required considerable nerve and determination to originate, launch, and finance such an undertaking as the construction and furnishing such an edifice as the Daly City Theatre. A very valuable site and more than $100,000 of capital were needed.

To nearly all localities such are formidable obstacles, but not so here, where a modest man who does much and does not like to have his name mentioned, took an interest and the obstacle faded away. Of course the Bank of Italy, Daly City, could and did help, but it was necessary to have some one to depend upon, and the modest man was he.

Very soon the Daly City Theatre will open its inviting doors to the public. In due course of events the date of opening will be made known to you by the lessees. Possibly there will be a program of ceremonies for the occasion, as it will be a great event in the history of this locality. It will mark an important epoch in the forward march of our efforts.

When the day of opening is announced it will be the civic duty of every resident of this city to forget for a little while his own affairs and go to the Daly City Theatre, so that he may see and feel what has been done for him and in some measure give evidence of his appreciation.

All who really rejoice in the advancement of our city toward the fulfillment of all reasonable desires, will be present to congratulate the men who have made the enterprise such a pronounced success. Their success is also yours.

ADDITION TO TRAFFIC FORCE BEING SOUGHT

The immediate appointment of five new state traffic policemen for addition to the day and night patrol force of San Mateo county will be asked of the state division of motor vehicles through the county board of supervisors at its next meeting, it has been announced by District Inspector Chas. Reade, who said that he would cooperate with Captain James Logan, of Redwood City, in asking the state to approve five names for appointment by the county board, so that the increase may take effect immediately.

Inspector Reade praised the San Mateo county night patrol, inaugurated nearly a month ago, in its startling reduction in the number of fatal and serious traffic accidents, and declared that it was the only means of wiping out the situation in San Mateo county. The two men now on patrol have indicated how effective the night patrol is, Reade added. He also said that the six district inspectors, including himself, now doing duty in San Mateo county, would continue upon instructions from Frank C. Snook, state division chief.

Captain Logan is particularly in favor of an increase in the night automobile patrol. Additional men and equipment, he stated, would soon reduce fatal accidents and Sunday and holiday smashups, until the highways would be perfectly safe.

It was also indicated that the county's warfare on speeders and road hogs would continue until those menaces had been reduced to a minimum.

FORMER DALY CITY MAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. William McKeown, of 703 Broderick street, San Francisco, are receiving the sympathy of their friends upon the death of their son Gordon, who was killed in an automobile accident in San Francisco on last Tuesday evening.

Gordon was married two weeks ago to Miss Catherine Miller, a nurse at the Franklin hospital, who had nursed him after an automobile accident in Mountain View on April 30. A party had been planned for last Wednesday evening, when Gordon was to have celebrated his twenty-first birthday.

The McKeown family formerly resided in Daly City for many years, where Gordon was a graduate of Mrs. Frary's class at Crocker school.

DRIVER HELD BLAMELESS FOR DEATH OF COLMA MAN

Albert Olson, aged 23, pressman's helper of 125 Lesse avenue, San Francisco, was exonerated of all blame for the death of James Meuguel, of Colma, Southern Pacific section foreman, whom Olson ran down and instantly killed opposite Millet's auto camp, late last Sunday night. A coroner's jury at Daly City returned a verdict of accidental death when it was found that Meuguel lurched from the side of the road directly into the path of Olson's car.

THE TURKEY SUPPLY FOR THANKSGIVING PLENTIFUL

Turkeys enough and to spare for the Thanksgiving and Christmas markets are in sight this year, according to state and national surveys announced by the California co-operative crop reporting service. California is expected to market nearly 100,000 turkeys, at least will have a crop one-fourth larger than in 1927, and the condition of the birds is from fair to excellent, according to the report.

Nationally the turkey output will be about 103 per cent in comparison to last year's crop.

SMITH TO CONTINUE FIGHT FOR PARTY

In a nation-wide address over the radio last Tuesday, Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for president at the recent election, declared that the principles of the Democratic party were as great in defeat as they would have been in victory, and that it was the party's duty "to carry on and vindicate" the principles for which it had fought.

His speech, broadcast over a nationwide hookup of stations, urged united support of Herbert Hoover—although he did not mention by name—asserting that the man selected by the people on November 6 to lead the country was "not the president of the Republican party, but president of the United States."

It would not do, said Governor Smith, to let bitterness, rancor or indignation over the result "blind us to the outstanding fact that we are Americans."

Referring to the thousands of letters he said he had received since the election and since he had announced that he would not again be a candidate for public office, the Governor said he had been asked "not to lose interest" in the Democratic party.

He said he did not regard the defeat of his party as interfering with the soundness of the principles for which it stood, and that with all the vigor he could command he would continue not only to stand for those principles, but to "battle for them." He added a pledge of increasing interest in and devotion to them.

Governor Smith called the Democratic party "the great liberal party of the nation," leading progressive thought and holding out "the only hope of return to the fundamental principles on which this country was built and as a result of which it has grown and thrived."

The Democrats would not be acting in good faith, Governor Smith said, if they were to adopt a policy of inaction "with a hope of profiting solely by the mistakes or the failures of the opposition."

"What this country demands," he asserted, "is constructive and not destructive criticism; a constructive program embodying the declarations of the Democratic platform."

MILK SUPPLY RATINGS SHOWN BY STATE TESTS

A surprise milk scoring contest on San Mateo county's milk supply has just been completed by a representative from the State Department of Agriculture, and the average score of all milk sold in the county was found to be 94.4 per cent. This figure indicates that the county's milk supply ranks among the best in the state and the score equals that made in the previous contest.

These milk scoring contests are the State Dairy Bureau's method of checking up on the effectiveness of the local inspection service, and also aids in maintaining a uniform grade of milk throughout California. The officials conducting the scoring contest were I. F. Torrey, state market milk specialist, and J. J. Garland, San Mateo county inspector.

FATHERS' AND SONS' NIGHT OBSERVED BY BOYS' CLUB

The Boys' Pioneer Club of Grace Presbyterian church had their fathers' and sons' get-together entertainment on Monday, November 12. There was a good turnout in spite of the rain, and the program was much enjoyed by all. The refreshments which the boys prepared were quickly disposed of by an appreciative crowd, and as the evening was voted a great success it was decided to have another gathering at an early date.

PETITIONERS SEEK STREET EXTENSION

The City Council met Tuesday evening, instead of Monday, as an adjourned Armistice day session.

A petition from many residents of the Jefferson and Metropolis districts, asking the Council to extend San Diego avenue, was received. Action was deferred to some future date, and the street committee was instructed to meet with the high school trustees and ascertain their views on this subject.

Troop No. 149, Boy Scouts of Daly City, thanked the Council for the use of the Auditorium on the evening of November 9, that evening being set aside to show the resident and parents of the boys the wonderful skill performed by the troop.

A request was received from the Hillcrest Garage, located on Hillcrest Drive, for permission to erect a gasoline pump on the sidewalk in front of this place of business. In line with the action of the Council some years ago, this request was denied.

The San Mateo county branch of the American Red Cross thanked the city of Daly City for the donation of $25 to the hurricane relief fund.

The T. L. Tucker Co. deposited the required bond with the Council to do blasting on Mission Circle. The bond was accepted and referred to the city attorney for proper resolutions.

Owing to the weather conditions only a few residents attended the session, and several matters were laid over until the next regular meeting on November 26.

PHILIPPINE RESIDENT TO SPEAK AT M. E. CHURCH

Daly City people are to have an unusual opportunity next Sunday evening when the Rev. Matias Cuadra of Siasi, Sulu, Philippine Islands, will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church and give some personal experiences of life in the Philippines. His is the unique experience of having been born into a Mohammedan family and trained in the teachings and beliefs of that faith, then, on coming to manhood, being converted to Christianity and entering the ranks of the ministry of the church of Christ.

He is a preacher with a real enthusiastic message of the value of Christianity to the people of his home land. He is at present a student in the Pacific College of Religion, taking graduate theological work to better prepare himself for the work of preaching the Gospel to his own people in Sulu.

Mr. Cuadra will wear the native costume of a Mohammedan as he preaches. At the close of the service opportunity will be afforded any who wish to ask questions concerning matters related to the Philippine Islands.

COUNTY GRAND JURY HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Buck. A preliminary meeting was held following the selection of the names. George E. Dunn, newspaper publisher of Half Moon Bay, is the foreman.

Following is the 1928-29 grand jury: C. L. Jordon, Belmont; A. S. Daudistel, Burlingame; Louisa E. McLellan, San Mateo; George R. Augustien, Daly City; Henry C. PROHIBITION PARTY POLLS 133 VOTES IN THIS COUNTY

The Prohibition party in San Mateo county increased its vote most decidedly in the recent general election. Dry voters to the number of 133 cast their ballots in favor of the Prohibition party presidential electors, which was nearly eight times the number of registered Prohibitionists before the election, which was 18.

These figures were established on a second count of the unofficial returns in the office of County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese. Although the votes were counted separately, when the official state returns are completed by Secretary Frank C. Jordon, the county's Prohibition votes will be added to the Hoover column. The Prohibition party chose the same electors as the Republican party.

DEDICATION OF NEW SOCIAL CENTER ON THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving day is a day on which our modern American people recall to mind the many blessings which Almighty God has sent them during the year, and are duly grateful. The members of St. Maximus parish on Thanksgiving day, November 29, of this year, are going to express their gratitude for the new athletic and social center which has been established in the parish during the past year.

An extensive and interesting program, including the formal opening and dedication of a new group of buildings, will be held on the grounds of St. Maximus church, on Thanksgiving day, commencing at 10 a. m.

The great ambition of those who were instrumental in forming a new parish in Daly City a few years ago was to take proper care of the many young people who are growing up in this flourishing community. Many thought it advisable to take care of this pressing need even before a church was built. However, the majority favored the building of a church and house in the first place, agreeing only to defer the proper care of the younger generation for as short a time as possible. How earnest and successful they have been is attested by the fact that they built an exceptionally beautiful church and house of reinforced concrete, costing approximately $100,000, of which $70,000 is already paid.

At last the time arrived when the proper care of the youth of the parish could be approached in a systematic way. Many early efforts at organization for this purpose were ineffective because there was nothing to hold the attention of the young. Then it was determined to build a great recreation and social center in this parish.

This center is now, after one year's effort, complete, and as near perfection as possible. No expense was spared in erecting and equipping this social and athletic center.

This newly erected group of buildings consists of a social hall, attractively decorated and well heated and lighted, with ample equipment for billiards, pool, gymnastics, cards, reading, etc. A kitchen has been added to the social hall to provide for refreshments when occasion demands. Two spacious handball courts of regulation size, enclosed on all sides, are the second feature. A basketball court, a tennis court, and a volleyball court, all outdoor, complete the group.

Needless to say the facilities offered to the public by this new recreation center, located as it is in the very heart of a thickly populated district, can hardly be exaggerated, and while the whole plan was designed and executed primarily for the young people of St. Maximus parish, it is the intention of those directing it to admit the general public on stated occasions.

Those who will benefit immediately are the members of St. Maximus Boys' and Girls' Clubs. The officers and some of the members of the St. Maximus Boys' Club are: William Sweeney, president; Walter Murphy, vice-president; Henry Henriouelle, secretary; Clifford Fields, treasurer; H. H. Smith, Jr., marshal; John Muller, Charles Nelson, Frank Godel, Stanley Baker, Jerome Dhuyvetter, Roy Kelly, Frank Davison, Richard Piscaro, John Welch, Cyril Sanford, Robert Barbee, Edward Pribula, Albert Dhuyvetter, Marcel Wille, Raymond Wille, Harry Gallagher, John Perry, Joseph Perry, Walter Collyot.

Active members in St. Maximus Girls' Club are: M. Trier, Helen Rhode, Lorraine Wall, Mary Dhuyvetter, Ella Martini, Teresa O'Connor, Margaret O'Connor, Lillian Rusting, Kathleen Regan, Jennie Panella, Rose Panella, Elsie Fahy, Helen Nation, Julia Nation, Edna Smith, Evelyn Smith, Vera Buriana, Christine Hume, Ada Johnson, Callista Dalton, Lorretta Johnson, Anna Kennedy, Hazel Milo, Sarah Fatini, Henrietta McKeown.

In addition there are about 400 children in the Sunday school who are entitled to enjoy these privileges.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Martha Wegner, of Crocker avenue, entertained a group of her friends on last Friday afternoon and evening in honor of her birthday. Mrs. Wegner received many lovely gifts from her friends. The evening was spent in dancing to the radio music, after which tempting refreshments were served to the following: Mrs. E. Moore, Mrs. L. Stienkamp, Mrs. J. Witt, of Berkeley, Mrs. C. Soltair, Mr. E. Fruchtnich, Mrs. D. Bristen, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. M. Barriolo, of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Witt, Fred Wegner, N. Wegner and John Flege.

CAN'T PROTECT THE CARELESS MOTORIST

The results of well directed, systematic safety education and practice are well illustrated by the fact that the railroads have reduced fatal accidents to employees 57 per cent during the last fifteen years.

While this is true of railroad employees, President Crowley of the New York Central lines, points out that accidents at railroad grade crossings have greatly increased during the same period, due to carelessness of automobile drivers.

"Safety work was first undertaken on the railroads in 1913," says Mr.

Crowley. "In that year 3,335 employees were killed and 170,239 were injured. In 1927, after fourteen years of earnest effort to prevent accidents, including constant urging of employees to be careful, 1,427 employees were killed and 83,883 injured. That is, by systematic effort, the number of employees killed was reduced 57 per cent in the number of injured 51 per cent, although the business of the railroads greatly increased during that time.

"In startling contrast with this encouraging showing is the fact that the number of persons killed at highway crossings on the railroads in 1913 was 1,125, while in 1927 the total had increased to 2,371."

The railroad companies have effectively reached their employees, while automobile drivers continue, through sheer carelessness or disregard of adequate warnings and safety devices, to contribute to the list of crossing fatalities.

THE BRIEF STORY OF AMERICAN PROGRESS

"Guiding the way toward closer ties and more intimate nation-wide inter-relationships, American business, with increasing effectiveness of effort, is doing much to cement governmental, social and economic America," says George T. Wight, manager of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

"Growth from a disjointed group of rival colonies, encumbered with individual problems and diverse interests, to a unified nation with common purposes and problems, is the brief story of American progress. State boundaries have yearly become more and more of a fiction. National ideas have emerged to overshadow local prejudices and narrow ambitions. The part played by business in achieving these results stimulates a reassuring picture of present and future national unity.

"Units of industry and business once confined to small local areas, are now national in scope. Interests which formerly seemed in conflict now co-operate in joint endeavors for common good. Rail and water transportation, the automobile, the telephone, the telegraph, the newspaper, and now the radio and the airplane, have each contributed largely to the linking up of the most remote frontiers of the land with all other sections of the country. When the most isolated citizens can instantly hear the words of their president and anticipate the day when his image likewise will be visible, their interests in national problems is more vital and responsive than when they only heard news of distant events long after they happened.

"Thus our continent is fast becoming one great neighborhood, promptly in touch with the doings of all its members and better qualified for a sympathetic understanding of the country's needs."

This puzzled the doctor very much, for he knew the young man was well able to meet them. The next time the young man called at his office, the doctor told him about them coming back.

The young man just laughed and said, "So are my ailments."

Indications of the fact that the drunken driver is "getting his," in part, over the state is the announcement by the state motor vehicle department that more than half of the revocations of driving licenses this year to date have been for drunken driving.

High voltage evidently did not worry Giuseppe Parisco, now booked at the county jail in Redwood City, for he is accused of stealing wire over which 4,000 volts were passing. He used pliers with pieces of rubber hose on the handles to remove the wire, according to the complaint against him.

Speaking before San Francisco Rotarians, R. E. By that time California's population will be close to 11,000,000."

plants are now building planes in this state, and eight daily and two tri-weekly passenger and mail services are flying nearly 250,000 miles each month.

MANY POPULAR MOVIE STARS ON STATE THEATRE PROGRAM

Next Saturday the State will present Dolores Del Rio in "The Gateway of the Moon," and Eddie Gribbon and Lila Lee in "United States Smith." On Sunday, Chester Conklin and W. C. Fields in "Tillie's Punctured Romance," and Jack Ludden in "Aflame in the Sky." There will be one of the best pictures of the season on Monday and Tuesday, November 19 and 20, "The Wheel of Chance," in which Richard Barthelmess has the leading role. Friday, November 23, "Square Crooks," in which Robert Armstrong and Dorothy Dwan are featured, will share honors with the popular Eddie's Advershow.

PUBLIC MUST COMBAT CRIME

"The reduction of crime depends not so much upon prosecuting officials and courts as it does upon the attitude of the people," said Silas H. Strawn, president of the American Bar Association, recently. "When prosecutors and courts and juries know that the people are watching them, they realize that the public conscience has been awakened to action, and they are more apt to do their duty. Thus, in the final analysis, the responsibility for the reduction of crime rests with the people."

Before any great change or reform can be instituted it must have a background of public interest and activity. A lax public consciousness must inevitably result in inaction and retrogression.

It is apparent that today the majority of the public looks upon crime as something apart from its own concern. The interest taken in important cases is mainly either morbid, or that of a sentimental minority of professional salvationists and sob-sisters who make martyrs of the most hardened criminals. There is very little real, intelligent public concern over our "crime waves." There is practically no concerted public action to stop them. The result is, naturally, more crime and less regard for law.

Our entire legal system suffers from a superabundance of red tape. Complicated, unnecessary laws often allow criminal cases to be drawn out, through the medium of delays and "appeals," over a long period, and eventually, in many instances, justice is circumvented altogether.

And if convicted, the criminal has ready resource to patrol boards, pardon laws, good conduct reductions of sentence, repeals and other means to effect his liberty, with the aid of well meaning but often misguided reformers. In one state it has been said that a sentence of "life imprisonment" means, on the average, about five years.

Mr. Strawn's remarks, coming from a high authority, are worth regarding. They indicate that the fault and the cure lie with the public.

ALL FIRES PREVENTABLE

The majority of fires result from hazards that could have been removed at the beginning, at a small cost or with a little caution. Hundreds of millions of dollars and thousands of lives are destroyed each year because of ignorance or carelessness.

The unpreventable fire is almost non-existent. The chief causes of conflagrations are defective chimneys and flues, carelessly handled matches and cigarettes, defective wiring and electrical equipment.

It is better to prevent fires than to extinguish them after they have done their damage. It should be the civic duty of every citizen to see that all possible fire risks under his control are regularly inspected and made safe.

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

Direct telephone service was inaugurated this past summer between Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

On January 1, 1928, the Dominion of Canada had 1,265,869 telephones. During the year 1927 there were 777,144 telephones added to the existing systems in the United States.

Telephone service has recently been made available between all parts of Belgium and the entire country of Sweden.

More than 75,000,000 completed telephone conversations are handled daily by the telephone companies in this country.

A NEW RECORD IN HIGHWAY BUILDING

The United States this year is spending a record sum for highways. The twelve months' total will reach $1,360,026,000.

This is 21 per cent more than last year and 5 per cent more than in 1926, when the former high mark was established.

The movement toward building good roads is a product of this century. The perfection of the automobile, the growth of industry and the social and business necessity of improved transportation arteries all contribute to the result. America in a few brief years has developed the finest highway system in the world, and every year is witnessing still greater progress.

Highways and prosperity move together. Every dollar spent in good roads building is a dollar that is a sound, dividend-returning investment. It has been said that Rome was only as great as her highways, and the same is again true of any modern nation today.

The surest way of crossing the ocean on schedule is still by boat.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Registration of 1,794,302 motor vehicles and collection of revenues totaling $8,480,328.50 this year were announced a few days ago by the State Division of Motor Vehicles. The report to Governor Young also said that 20,370 out-of-state automobiles entered California during the last month.

In addition to California highway work already in progress, new construction involving $5,000,000 will be authorized during the winter months of unemployment, according to Bert B. Meek, director of public works. This action, he said, is in line with Governor Young's suggestion that public works be carried on as extensively as possible in helping to solve the unemployment problem.

California has voted to reapportion its representatives in the State Senate. The bond issue of $1,000,000 for the 1929 Olympiad in Los Angeles has carried, as has the $6,000,000 bond issue for acquisition of state parks. So has the measure relating to taxation of banks and intangible securities. Propositions to repeal the state boxing law and to abolish rodeos have been defeated.

Decreases both in California industrial deaths and permanent injuries during the last year were reported to Governor Young and cabinet members a few days ago by Will J. French, state director of industrial relations. French cited 714 deaths, a decrease of 4.5 per cent for the year, and 1135 permanent injuries, an 8 per cent reduction. Temporary injuries lasting more than one day, totaled 90,538, a slight drop of 2.10 per cent.

The Seiberling Rubber Company has acquired a 100 acre tract in Oakland and will start construction of a $3,000,000 plant within the next few weeks, it was announced last week. The tract is on Jones street south of the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks. About 500 people will be employed and 2500 tires daily will be the initial output.

Paid registration fees of motor vehicles in California for the first nine months of 1928 showed an increase of 63,399 cars over a similar period in 1927. Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, announced a few days ago. The total for the nine months' period is 1,800,522, as compared with 1,736,795 for 1927.

California leads all states in number of aviators, the aeronautics branch of the Commerce Department announced a few days ago at Washington. It has 633 licensed pilots. New York ranks second with 347. The next eight are: Illinois, 216; Michigan, 194; Pennsylvania, 180; Ohio, 180; Texas, 176; District of Columbia, 162; Missouri, 150; Virginia, 105. These ten together have almost two-thirds of all the American aviators.

Governor C. C. Young at the meeting of the governor's council a few days ago requested that the division of motor vehicles supply information at the next meeting showing the causes of various automobile accidents occurring throughout the state. The governor asked for this information after a report of the division had been read, showing that in the first nine months of 1928 there were 1399 deaths, 5512 serious injuries and 14,232 minor injuries in automobile accidents in California.

While the ratio of state hospital patients to governing attendants and physicians is much higher in California than in either Massachusetts or New York, it costs California less to care for her inmates, Earl E. Jensen, director of state institutions, told Governor C. C. Young recently. Jensen submitted a report showing that in Massachusetts the annual per capita cost is $368.83; New York, $397.96; and California, $249.14. The ratio of patients to attendants: California, 12.1; Massachusetts, 11.6; New York, 9. The ratio of patients to physicians: California, 312.2; New York, 180.7; Massachusetts, 151.96.

Thousands of visitors who invade California by the auto trail route each year hereafter will find border inspection stations comfortable stopping places, with courteous employees on hand to supply them with necessary information while other state agents make the necessary inspection of their baggage. Such is the plan advanced a few days ago by the state's cabinet of departmental executives. Comfortable stations of rustic design will be erected at the various interstate connections, it is proposed, with inspectors of the State Department of Agriculture and State Division of Motor Vehicles operating in the same building.

A new world's speed record for an airplane passenger carrier was declared to have been established last week, when a Western Air Express Fokker monoplane flew to Los Angeles from Oakland in two hours and six minutes. The flying distance was 365 miles. The ship averaged 177 miles an hour. The big tri-motored plane, carrying five passengers, left the Oakland Municipal Airport at 8:30 a. m. and landed at Los Angeles at 10:36 a. m. The air cruiser was speeded along by a fifty-two mile tail wind, according to Pilot Cy Morehouse.

BIGGEST THRILL IN A GRID GAME

Yale Player Blocks Drop-Kick Attempt by Harvard.

George C. Moseley, Yale football end in 1915-16, had a thrilling experience in his football career. Among other things he views with amused interest is his record of never having played a Harvard team and lost, writes Fred A. Hayner in the Chicago Daily News. Both at Hill school and as a Yale freshman his teams won from the Crimson yearlings. The year Harvard beat Yale 42 to 0 in 1915 Moseley was laid up in the Princeton game and did not get into the later Yale-Harvard mixup. He was a back in 1916 and helped beat Harvard 6 to 3. He was made an all-American end in 1916.

"Possibly my biggest thrill came in a Princeton game which we won," he said.

"In the 1916 Princeton-Yale game my team punted. There were about six Princeton men waiting for the ball to drop on about the 15-yard line. It fell and bounced high. As there was no one else jumping for it I decided to do so and took the ball to the 10-yard line. After three plays we dropped a goal for three points.

"Princeton later took the ball to our 15-yard line, where they paused. I sensed a drop kick try and asked my tackle to play wide, as I was going in. As the ball was passed I shot straight in and jumped on the halfback's back. I jumped from him directly into the path of the kicked ball and it hit me fairly in the stomach and knocked me cold. It prevented their scoring and we later scored a touchdown and won 10 to 0.

"I was not taken from the game, but played it out. In those days the coaches tried to select eleven or twelve men who could play the entire game."

Bob Meusel Has Been Dubbed "Slow and Lazy"

One of the greatest money players in the game, despite his aversion to wasting physical effort where he deems it will do no good, earned the sobriquet "Slow and Lazy" for not running out a bounder which Heinie Groh subsequently dribbled across the diamond in the 1922 series. To make it worse, Aaron Ward crossed Lanky Bob by following with a home run, which, with Meusel's run, would have tied the score and perhaps enabled the Yankees to escape with two ties and four defeats rather than just one tie.

With Hoyt, Ruth and Huggins, Bob is a survivor of the first Yankee championship club of 1921. He bats with his right and throws the same way—throws from town to town.

Baseball School Will Open at Los Angeles

Baseball has taken its place among the fine arts in academic science. A school, whose faculty will be composed of men who have won more or less fame in the realm of baseball, past and present, has been organized at Los Angeles for the purpose of instructing young players in the national pastime. Rookies of the diamond will come under the personal supervision of such men as Frank ("Pop") Dillon, Jess Orndorff and Johnnie Bassier.

The course will run for three months, December to March, and negotiations are being completed for use of Wrigley field as the training site.

Rice Puts Grid Hope in Three Old Illini Stars

The football wagon of Rice institute is hitched to three stars of the Illinois constellation.

Claude Rothgeb, head coach at Rice, was an outstanding Illini athlete a quarter of a century ago.

"Pug" Daugherty, Rothgeb's assistant, was at Illinois in the era of "Red" Grange. It was "Pug's" interference that enabled the famous ice-man to deliver touchdowns.

"Peanuts" Schulz, new member of freshmen at Rice, was a member of the Illinois team that won the Western conference football championship last fall.

Paul Prehn, head of the Illinois state athletic commission, was elected unanimously to the presidency of the National Boxing association in session at Toronto.

Pays Conscience Debt of 25 Cents

Fort Worth, Texas.—Five years ago a woman and her small son got on a Fort Worth-Dallas interurban at Arlington. The conductor overlooked the boy so his mother let him "slip by."

Recently the Northern Texas Traction company received a letter from the woman in Santa Monica, Calif.

"I have started for heaven and I feel that I must settle all things that should be paid," the contrite passenger wrote.

Inclosed were stamps for 25 cents, the long overdue fare.

ENGINEER'S GRIT PREVENTS WRECK

Train Brought to Stop as Driver Is Stricken.

Atlanta, Ga.—A story of the heroism of an engineer who, by sheer grit, triumphed over intense physical distress long enough to insure the safety of his passengers arriving aboard the Crescent limited was told here.

It was while piloting the Southern railway's fast train between Monroe, Va., and Salisbury, N. C., his regular run, that Engineer Joe M. Stedman suffered an acute attack of indigestion as he sat at the throttle a few miles out of Danville, Va.

He felt insensibility rapidly closing over him from the pains in his stomach. Then he thought of the trainload of passengers and by a superhuman effort of will, managed to apply the brakes. The train rolled to a steady stop just as he collapsed on the floor of his cab.

The summoning of medical aid and organization of an emergency train crew resulted in a delay of about forty minutes. Finally, with a fireman at the throttle and a baggagemaster acting as fireman, the Crescent was brought into Salisbury.

Passengers made up a purse of $147 for Engineer Stedman, who was reported by officials of the road to be well on the way to recovery.

Pretty Bookkeeper Has Record of Forgeries

New York.—Winifred Douglas, the pretty, competent young bookkeeper whose ability to obtain positions of trust in spite of her record as an embezzler, has been lodged in Jefferson Market prison.

Magistrate Jean Norris held her in $5,000 bail on a charge of forgery brought by the Tidewater Roofing company, where her peculations are said to total $14,000.

During the ten months she worked for the company she was being sought by probation officers on a warrant issued last October after M. Ewing Fox & Co., where she had been employed, missed $3,327.30. She was found recently working for the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which lost $57.

For the last two years she has been on probation after conviction of stealing from Jay-Thorp, Inc. Under her probation she promised to pay back this firm $1,600 in installments.

Miss Douglas, who is thirty-four, but looks younger, told Magistrate Norris that if she were released on bail she would help police find a man involved in the Tidewater thefts.

Lenity was granted to her in the past when complainants preferred restitution to prosecution.

Foils Thieves; Forgets Where She Hid Cash

Giant, Calif.—The postmistress of this little town saved $18,000 in registered mail from burglars and then forgot where she hid the mail.

Post office inspectors ran in figurative circles when the robbery of the post office was discovered and Mrs. K. E. Pierson, postmistress, announced the mail was stolen. They ran faster when she remembered she hid it some place, but forgot where it was.

Then Mrs. Pierson remembered. She went to a crevice in the wall and pulled out an envelope containing $18,000 worth of stock.

The inspectors congratulated her for saving the mail and suggested she should tie a string around her finger in such a future case.

Youth's Neck Broken by Mule's Kick at Cou

Petersburg, Va.—While helping his brother to drive cows into a barn on his mother's farm recently at Bracey, Brunswick county, Va., Boyd Haskins Russell was almost instantly killed when he was kicked by a mule.

The youth was watching the cows pass into the barn when the mule suddenly kicked at one of them. The hoofs struck the lad's neck, which was broken.

Buried 32 Days

Latrobe, Pa.—A rooster, buried for 32 days under a mound of wheat was rescued on the E. L. Elmer farm. The bird appeared weak, but after shaking himself several times, emitted a feeble crow, and began to strut.

Honest Driver

Westport, Conn.—When Edward Craig, Saugatuck taxi driver, ran over a chicken he duly reported the fatality to police—the first report of the kind on the local headquarters' blotter.

CASE-HARDENED

"Viper!" she hissed. "Scoundrell! Wretch! Blackguard! Fool!"

Smiling sweetly, he continued to glance over his paper.

"Villain!" she resumed, her eyes flashing vivid fire. "Robber-rr!"

"Yes, yes," he said. "Go on!"

Then a thought suddenly occurred to her, and she sank hopelessly into a chair at the uselessness of it all. He had been a baseball umpire.—Patfinder.

Denver Boy

is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. C. G. Wilcox, 3855 1/2 Wolff St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

Seeking publicity means that you may have to accept some pretty rough stuff.

You did Right!

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

ARBITRATING DISPUTES

An illustration of how many big daily newspapers look upon constructive news is given by a recent writer who recalls the rebuke given to a reporter covering an international conference in Honolulu last summer.

One day the reporter thought the proceedings of the conference of sufficient importance to warrant a 600-word cable, even though no riot occurred among the delegates. His editor called him down, telling him to cut dispatches short, "unless there is a clash."

By reason of that attitude on the part of the metropolitan press, the work of the International Joint Commission, created in 1911, consisting of six representatives of the United States and Canada for the purpose of arbitrating disputes between the two countries, receives little notice. The Commission generally settles matters without a clash. In fact, among all the questions dealt with by the Commission the decisions have been unanimous, except in only two cases.

Because of the quiet and harmonious manner in which the Commission has performed its important duties, it is unlikely that very many citizens of either country even know of its existence. But its work has received high praise from statesmen of both countries and of Europe, where it has been held up as a model for international arbitration agencies.

LOAN FOR NEW SHIPS

The first government loan to a private steamship corporation for the building of new ships under the Jones-White shipping law has been granted to the Export Steamship Corporation of New York for the construction of four vessels.

The new ships are to ply between New York and Mediterranean ports, carrying passengers and cargo. The loan, as provided by the law, will equal three-fourths of the cost of the vessels, or about $4,500,000. Each will be 450 feet long and of about 8,200 gross tons. Other applications for similar loans are pending and will be acted on by the Shipping Board in the near future.

Under the Jones-White law the sum of $250,000,000 was made available for ship construction for the purpose of aiding in building up the American merchant marine. The loans are made at a very low rate of interest and are to be repaid in twenty annual installments.

To those who recognize the necessity for building up a modern fleet of merchant ships, it will be gratifying to know that the new law gives promise of accomplishing that purpose.

TRIBUTE TO COMPOSER

Another tribute has been paid by the people of the South to Stephen C. Foster, composer of Southern folk songs, by the erection of a monument to his memory in the form of a large boulder bearing this inscription: "Erected to the memory of Stephen Collins Foster at the source of the stream which he immortalized in song, the Suwanee River."

Foster wrote about 125 songs, among which were "Old Folks at Home," "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "Nelly Was a Lady," and others which have been sung the world over.

Although many of his best songs were of the South, Foster was born near Pittsburgh, and lived in the North all his life, never going farther south than Kentucky, except for one trip to New Orleans. He was born in 1826 and died in 1864.

He wrote both words and music of his songs, which perhaps accounts for the perfect blending of their poetry and melody. While he could not be called a great composer from a strictly musical standpoint, his peculiar talent was recognized by poets and musicians of note, and his songs have a human appeal which is irresistible.

America has produced no sweeter singer than Stephen Collins Foster.

REAL ACCIDENTS FEW

What are generally classed as accidents are not in most cases accidents at all, but merely the results of pure carelessness or recklessness, according to a noted railroad surgeon, who declares that really unpreventable accidents are very few.

The greater number of accidents are caused by failure to keep in mind the consequences of a slight mistake in judgment, or in "taking a chance" even when the danger is realized.

Of 25,000 deaths in the United States through automobile accidents each year, it is safe to say that 90 per cent of them are due to someone's disregard of ordinary safety precautions. The worst feature of this is that a reckless driver not only endangers himself but also trifles with the lives of others.

In accidents due to fire the same principle holds good. Everyone knows how easily the careless throwing of a lighted match may start a disastrous fire, yet millions of lighted matches, cigar and cigarette stubs are cast aside with little or no caution. Practically every fire that occurs is caused by stupid carelessness.

Accidents do happen, of course, under circumstances wherein no one in the minority. Generally accidents are caused by ignorance, carelessness or caution disregard of consequences.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

In the autumn of 1923 an international group of social workers, meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, expressed despair of educating the world to the better day of brotherhood through the customary persuasions of war and diplomacy. Yet the aim was so infinitely to be desired! Could the persuasion of the Golden Rule be made effective? If on an appointed day, say the first Sunday in December, the whole world should sit at a common table, eat bread and salt, think of the hungry and the sorrowing and make a donation for their aid, would not a great advance be made in practical religion?

The idea fired the imagination of the world. Presidents, kings and preachers; the Pope, religious leaders and Patriarchs; powerful financiers, influential statesmen, educators, labor leaders, approved and led friends and followers to a community of thought and feeling such as this old world earth has never known. On the third anniversary of International Golden Rule Sunday fifty-three countries united in its observance and contributed to the Near East Relief orphans who are the foremost beneficiaries. The day falls on December 2 this year.

NON-STOP PLOWING

Non-stop records in flying, swimming, dancing, piano playing, and other activities have been given a great deal of publicity of late, but one of the most interesting as well as useful tests of this nature to be reported was a plowing record recently set at the farm operated by the University of California.

In this test a tractor was run continuously for seventeen days and nights, drawing a disk plow, during which time the outfit traveled 1,330 miles and disked 1,280 acres of land. During the 408 hours of the test the engine was never stopped, but the tractor was halted 15 minutes four times a day for re-fuelling and servicing. Only one case of mechanical trouble developed, the loosening of a valve push rod, but this was adjusted without stopping the engine. During the test 1,151 gallons of gasoline and 117 quarts of oil were consumed.

This demonstration may forecast a marked change in farming of the future, when mass production methods shall be applied to agriculture as they have already been applied to industry.

ELECTRICITY THE CIVILIZER

More than any other single agency, electricity is responsible for our modern social and industrial order.

There is almost no comparison between the modern home and that of 50 years ago. Electricity lights, vacuum cleaners, stoves, almost endless labor saving devices have transformed it into a model of comfort and convenience. The old drudgery of house work has disappeared and in its place is new ease and efficiency.

Before electric power was harnessed, industry was largely a matter of strong arms and backs. The possible productiveness of a laborer was limited to his physical power.

The modern worker, in contrast, with electric power at his beck and call, can do many times the amount of work and do it better and with less effort.

As a result of his tremendously increased productivity, he is able to command wages that give him living conditions, pleasures and luxuries formerly undreamed of.

To day electricity is making its way in a new field, that of agriculture. What it has done in the past 20 years for industry and the city home, it is now doing for farming and the farm home. Electricity operated machines and devices replace laborious hand work and operate at a low cost with unparalleled efficiency.

Electricity has been more than a mere aid in performing necessary functions. It has proven a great civilizer as well.

We prefer the sound of the farm tractor to that of the political detractor.

WISDOM OF AGE

In these modern times old age is regarded by some as evidence of decay, mental and physical disintegration, and general uselessness.

This assumption is prompted by various pronouncements of the youthful intelligentsia who deprecate "old-fogey" tendencies and protest against the staid conventionalities that appear to go hand-in-hand with men and women of mature years.

An educator of comparatively youthful mien was accorded goodly space in the press in which to render the opinion that teachers upon reaching the age of 45 years were unfit to remain in their honored profession, by reason of the fact that they could no longer sympathetically understand Youth, and consequently could not adjust themselves to the situation of giving complete instruction. Being, as it were, "out of step" with juvenile matters, these middle-aged or elderly teachers' ability was diminished, if not entirely lost. Such was the gist of the educator's statement.

Of course, it must be conceded that this gentleman's direct contact with a representative university lends his expressed opinion no little weight. He most likely has first-hand information on the subject. He is familiar with the likes and dislikes of the students, their mental attitudes toward teachers and professors, hence it is felt that this educator was entirely correct—from the standpoint of Youth itself.

It is to be regretted, however, that mature teachers—those past forty-five—who have given years of consecrated effort and devotion to the teaching of their youthful charges, should be so lightly disposed of on the grounds of inability, especially in view of the fact that these same years which have left their indelible marks of gray hair and wrinkles have likewise brought a rich measure of experience and ever-increasing knowledge.

Suppose the young educator's opinion should achieve such weight and authority that it would result in the enactment of an ordinance prohibiting a teacher over the age of 45 from continuing in the profession. A vast number of men and women whose life earnings had indeed been meager would be cast out into a cold world on a pittance at the very height of their ability, and would be supplanted by a number of mere boys and girls whose academic ability counted not so much as their sympathetic "understanding" of juvenile problems.

If one may judge by the types of young men and women encountered in the classrooms of the modern school and college, one may see imperative need for the kindly and restraining influence of instructors who have passed the age of frivolity, and whose mature reasoning and competent teachings to go a long way to curb the irresponsibilities that beset the Youth of today.

"Old-fashioned" is a common and well worn expression. In fact, it runs a close second to that other reliable stand-by "tolerance," which figures so prominently in today's conversations. The former term, however, is employed usually in a disrespectful, somewhat superior sense, a rebuke as it were. The modernistic interpretations of this term are varied, if not unique.

It is astonishing, however, to note that many, if not a majority of "old-fashioned" people have the happy faculty of experiencing the real pleasures of life. They are content to go at a modest pace and have little desire for "thrills" or "speed."

Just recently a boyish inmate of a California prison paid the extreme penalty for taking a human life. This chap would have deeply resented being termed "old-fashioned." If anything, he proved the other extreme. But why single him out from the young men and women, boys and girls, who are so generously represented in the realm of lawlessness today? Some of those who have received the sentence of death have been so young in years that a humane citizenry has balked at the thought of taking their lives—even though the courts have rendered the only verdict that they, in justice, could. Something is wrong in the scheme of civilization when Youth, like Macbeth's ambition, "o'erleaps itself." A remedy should be sought and that remedy, apparently, must come from Age and competent experience.

Continuing the thought of age being a barrier, as expressed by the educator, how many mere youths are to be found occupying the really important positions, national, state, civic and private, today? There are, it is true, many exceptionally bright young men and women who are capably holding down positions of trust, but we are speaking in a general way.

How many young men have served as President of this great republic? Or as Justices of the Federal Supreme Court? Or of the National Congress? Mature years may not, after all, be considered an impediment on the highway of success.

Consider the Greek philosophers, recall those venerable characters in Holy Writ whose sound judgment was respectfully sought by the aspiring Youth. Consider those wise and kindly Jewish patriarchs that could always be counted upon to dispense helpful advice and good counsel from their rich store of wisdom.

Youth is a beautiful period of life, there is such a sense of freedom from bodily ills, mental responsibilities; the cares and toil of life have but lightly touched the brow of the boy and girl; the future is rose-hued. Life—that great, fascinating experience—is still ahead; ambitions are to be realized; love, happiness and success are in the offing.

But the youth of both sexes may with profit sit at the feet of the venerable man and carefully heed the invaluable advice to be gained. Here is one who has drained the cup of earthly experience, who has fought the great battle and bears the scars of conflict. And what does Age teach?

Perhaps some things will be learned that are not exactly pleasant. One may suffer disappointments and may almost regret that he sought the counsel of Age. But what he learns will prove very helpful. The teacher, a pioneer, has charted the voyage of life. He knows where the shoals and reefs are to be encountered. By bitter experience he has navigated the difficult passage and is competent to guide the hands of the young helmsman through the tricky currents and away from hidden derelicts and rocks.

With all due respect for tender years, it seems that it is not necessary for Age to "understand" and "adjust" itself to Youth, but rather that a transposition of this form would not be amiss. Let Youth seek the counsel of Age. It is not a misdemeanor to be "old-fashioned," to fail to appreciate just why "Youth must be served," or why the boys and girls of this "advanced" age should, without limitation or restriction, experience every frivolous pleasure that a gay world may offer.

Approaching the complex issues of life, let Youth draw near to the venerable philosopher and, in respectful silence, listen attentively while Age speaks.

Three "long-tailed sacred fowls" of Japan, silver tinted, with tails 18 feet in length, were exhibited at the Canadian national poultry show, held at Toronto. This is the first time any of these sacred birds have been allowed to leave Japan.

Although Turkey has an area of 280,000 square miles, only three of its cities have electric power systems of considerable size.

Australia will bar ordinary musicians. Which will keep 100 per cent of the jazz artists out.

HOME.....? or just a house?

PRIMITIVE man no doubt called his shelter "home," be it cave or roof of boughs. Today, though, home means so much more than just a house—telephone, radio, hot and cold water and electric lights with convenient outlets, and all those modern conveniences which make for healthful, comfortable living.

Your friends will tell you that EXTENSION TELEPHONES save steps and time and increase the comfort of living far more than the trifling cost involved.

Just call our Business Office and say, "I want an extension telephone."

Mrs. Salion, nee Angelina Oleese, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oleese.

THREE HUNDRED ARRESTED IN CAMPAIGN ON ROAD HOGS

Road hogs who hug the middle of the road to the peril of other traffic, as well as violators of the speed laws, have had some bad moments on the peninsula during the last three weeks, according to a report made by District Inspector Reed of the state traffic squad, who announces that during a three weeks' campaign to curb traffic menaces of all kinds, more than 300 arrests have been made.

Of the 300 motorists arrested for traffic violations, 40 received tags for "hogging the road." The section of the state law requiring slow-moving traffic to keep at the extreme right will continue to be rigidly enforced, Reed declared. A common cause of accidents, he asserted, are these "road hogs" who force rapid traffic to swing over to the left if they wish to maintain legal speed.

Five state inspectors are working under Reed's direction, and in conjunction with the regular peninsula traffic squad, to improve traffic conditions. They are Frank Quinn, Paul Maxim, W. H. Curson, A. H. Crane and W. J. Bradley.

ALIENS FROM GERMANY LEAD LIST OF ENTRIES

Germany, Great Britain and the Irish Free State led in the number of immigrants entering the United States in the fiscal year 1928-29 up to September 30, according to the monthly list of immigration quotas made public by the Department of State.

The number of entries given from Germany was 14,922; that of Great Britain and Northern Ireland 7,820, and the Irish Free State 5,159. The total number of entries, according to the report, was 41,954. The quota law allows 164,667 for the entire year.

A "MIRACLE" EXPLAINED

A recent London dispatch told that R. Hotate, a young English scientist, had found a method of overcoming gravity. Thereupon Dr. Grace of the Bell Telephone laboratories gave a demonstration in which he apparently accomplished the same feat, using two pieces of cobalt steel, one of which stood suspended in the air. The experiment was thus explained:

"Cobalt steel is capable of super-magnetization. These super-magnetized pieces of cobalt steel have been placed with the positive pole of one over the positive pole of the other. The natural repulsion causes the upper bar to remain suspended."

Dr. Grace said that he did not know what method the British scientist had used, but he gave his own demonstration to show one way of apparently defying the law of gravity. Which illustrates that almost anything can be done if one knows how.

People who feel discouraged may take comfort from the fact that even old man Tariff Issue staged a comeback.

HEAD OF STATE W. C. T. U. DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Addie Garwood Estes, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Northern California since 1921, died Monday after a long illness. Mrs. Estes had been president of the California State W. C. T. U. for seven years and was re-elected to that office on October 24 at the forty-eighth annual convention. She had been active in temperance work for many years before she took over the state presidency. As state legislative director she attended five sessions of the state legislature. For three years she was state law enforcement director. She has been a national lecturer and was prominent in civic work. She was a native of Stockton.

COUNTY LINE HOUSE IS SCENE OF RAID

For the second time in the past few months the County Line House in Visitation Valley was raided last Saturday night by Sheriff J. J. McGraith and posse. Ah Lee and Willie Chang, Chinese, were arrested and charged with gambling. They were released from the county jail in Redwood City when they furnished $250 cash bail.

The place is right on the county line in the northern end of the county. One-half of the building is in San Mateo county and the other half is in San Francisco county. The Chinese were in the midst of a "craps" game when the officers walked in, it is said.

WHY MORE FARM LAND?

When Congress meets in December we shall see a renewal of efforts to pass two kinds of legislation which would appear to an unbiased observer to be intended to defeat each other.

One is the proposal to appropriate money for farm relief, with a view to a better handling of surplus farm products. The other is the proposal to appropriate money for bringing under cultivation vast areas of additional land through irrigation.

The first proposal, that for farm relief, is an eminently worthy one, provided some workable plan can be agreed upon which will accomplish the object sought. But if farm relief is supplied with one hand, and additional land is provided by the other, where shall the farmer be benefited in the long run?

It seems evident to any thoughtful person that until the consumption of farm products catches up with production, it would only make matters worse to increase the acreage of cultivated lands. On many of the irrigation projects already developed by the government the settlers have been unable to make a living, and further appropriations have been recommended with a view to aiding them.

Even Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, declared recently that unless aid were supplied to these farmers it would be unwise to irrigate additional lands.

As the Nashville Banner recently said, "certainly this country does not require any additional farm lands just now, no matter how speculators and promoters may feel."

MORE AND BETTER HENS

Farmers' wives formerly looked upon the poultry flock as merely a means of better providing for the family table, with possibly a little "pin money" from the surplus chickens and eggs. For these purposes it was not thought that any particular care was necessary in the selection of breeds on in the general handling of the flock.

But that idea is fast being discarded and the thrifty farm home-maker now looks upon her poultry as an important source of cash income. She has found that it is little more trouble to have a big flock than it is to have a small flock, and the big flock is a money-maker.

Not only does she have larger flocks nowadays, but she has better stock and employs scientific methods in her poultry raising. More attention is given to proper feeding and sanitation; poor layers are culled out; infertile eggs are produced and they are marketed clean, graded according to size and color.

A good sized flock of pure-bred chickens affords one of the most dependable sources of farm income.

PAN-AMERICAN AIR MAIL

Three nations of North America, Canada, the United States and Mexico, are now linked by air mail lines, whereby letters may be sent by plane from Ottawa and Montreal to Mexico City.

The route of such mail is stated by General John F. O'Ryan, head of Colonial Airways, to be as follows: "A letter mailed in Ottawa addressed to Mexico City will be flown to Montreal, thence via Albany, Cleveland, Chicago, Dallas and Laredo, where the Mexican line connects."

Air mail will be carried from Canada to New York at five cents for the first ounce and ten cents for each additional ounce or fraction; letters from Canada to Mexico City will cost twenty cents for each ounce or fraction.

It is said to be probable that air mail service will later be extended to Panama and ultimately to South American countries, thus bringing all the principal nations of the western hemisphere in closer contact, a consummation greatly to be desired.

The Return of Anthony Trent

"It would take more than one of your hints to move Anthony Trent. I wish Heaven would give you the sense to recognize the people I like to see and those who bore me. Anthony Trent's by way of being a celebrity. Send him in."

"I've persuaded him to see you," said the secretary to the visitor.

"Yes, I know. I overheard you," Trent smiled.

Mr. Hill wrung Anthony Trent's hand warmly.

"What has dragged you from Europe's gilded salons?" he demanded.

"Business mainly, and a desire to know whether what you told me in London holds good in Washington."

Hill was a shrewd man and one accustomed to believing that he was a good judge of human motives. Yet this keen-faced visitor had puzzled him for years. Mr. Hill had hesitation in classifying him. He only knew that he liked him and thought under some circumstances he might fear Anthony Trent.

"Sit down," he said cordially, "and tell me what's on your mind."

"Do you remember what you said to me in London?"

"I asked you to lunch, I think, and naturally talked about men and things. One doesn't have to carry luncheon conversation as mental baggage."

"I expected you to fence," said Trent smiling. "I'll recall it. You may have forgotten that it was I who found that William, prince of Misselbach, was hiding in a certain Croatian castle although he had been buried with all the pomp due to his rank."

"Certainly I remember it," said the ex-ambassador warmly. "It was a very useful piece of information for us and we were able to discount the lies that Count Michael Temesvar was telling us. Why it was one of the most extraordinary feats I ever heard of. It was invaluable to the Allies. He looked at Trent keenly. "Tell me, is your life made up of these amazing doings? I've been hearing a lot about your capturing a pirate ship and sailing her over dry land into Guggenohn's old home."

Trent ignored Deal Beach.

"In London," he said, "you made a sort of veiled promise to me."

"Are you sure?" Hill retorted. "I am not noted for veiling things."

"I am sure, and you did tell it in this instance. You said that our government had no such way of repaying those of her citizens as rendered her special and meritorious service. Your very words, Mr. Hill. You said if I had been English I might have had my name in the 'Birthday Honor List.' You likened me to a 'mute inglorious Milton' and then made a most extraordinary statement."

"Did I?" Mr. Hill queried. "I was a diplomat then and enough at the game to believe in esoteric utterances. Just what do you remember me to have said?"

"That if ever I got into a tight place I should have something to trade with. Have you forgotten?"

"No," said the cabinet officer. "I remember the whole thing very vividly. That still goes. What tight place are you in?" Was he at last to learn something more definite about this amazing Anthony Trent than the mere hypothesis he held that the man had some secret manner of life? Mr. Hill had known Trent slightly for ten years. He remembered one of the editors of a magazine he had woned being enthusiastic concerning the detective stories written by a young Dartmouth athlete named Anthony Trent. The series after a year or so was discontinued. Hill learned that the former writer had inherited a fortune from an Australian uncle and wrote no more for gain. Then Trent had turned up in England, as an intimate friend of an aristocratic and exclusive family, causing much heart-burning among some of his own fellow countrymen who were denied the privilege.

The ambassador who had observed Trent closely in London had come to the conclusion that he was always on guard. It seemed as though his muscles were tensed as if for a struggle and his mind singularly alert as though danger were near. Mr. Hill had several times asked himself why a young American with money and friends need adopt this attitude. He hoped that he was about to learn the reason.

"None," said Trent. "I've come to ask you to help a friend."

Mr. Hill was conscious of disappointment.

"What's the nature of the trouble?" "As you were in London in 1915 you know all about the secret visit of a certain royal highness who came over here to hasten our entrance into the big scrap."

"Now how the devil did you know that?" Hill exclaimed. The visit had been kept unknown for political reasons.

"I also know," Trent went on, "that the wonderful diamond given the prince by the maharajah of Lepitalla when they shot tigers together was stolen from him in Washington and has not been recovered."

"I don't see how that could have leaked out," said Mr. Hill, "but you are quite right. The well-known crooks were rounded up and either locked up or else sent out of the District of Columbia. Washington was thought to be as safe as, let us say, Carmel-by-the-Sea, and yet the jewel was taken. It was a blot on our secret service."

"Is it known who took it?"

"They know the woman but they have lost her as well as the stone."

"The woman may be lost," Trent remarked, "but as to the diamond—I think you exaggerate." He tossed the little leather bag on the other's knee. "I'm hoping it's going to bring me good luck."

Mr. Hill stared at it, fascinated.

"Where did you get it from?" he demanded.

"Not in Washington or from his royal highness. You can consider it taken in a way not usual but hardly illegal."

"Why bring it here? You must know a large reward was offered for it?"

"That part of it doesn't interest me. I brought it here because I want to make a trade with you."

"You are acting for your friend?"

"I am. I'll return this diamond, cancel the reward, if you'll have the warrants which are out against the woman who took this quashed. I'll turn over the Nizam's diamond if I have your official word that she is to be free from police interference in future."

Mr. Hill was still staring at the gem. He had never seen so large a diamond at close range. He saw himself at a cabinet meeting tossing the gorgeous thing on the table with some such remark as, "The prince's bauble, gentlemen!"

"In other words," he said slowly "you want us to give this expert the opportunity to go on working with the pleasing knowledge that the police won't interfere."

"Nothing of the sort," Trent corrected. "I'm not fool enough to expect a bargain of that kind. I merely want your assurance that the warrants now in force will be quashed. If she does anything in future to bring herself within reach of the law she is prepared to suffer for it. I may as well tell you she never will do anything crooked."

"You must have supreme confidence in her."

"You couldn't have expressed it better. I have."

"I must remind you that your confidence may be dictated by some purely personal liking which has nothing to commend itself to me. You must not expect me to be swayed by sentiment. How can I assure myself or my colleagues that your impressions of her are not false?" Mr. Hill smiled at the younger man kindly. "Don't be offended when I say that the police considered her at the time of the loss of this diamond one of the cleverest women working outside the law. She perhaps set out to persuade you she was deeply wronged. She may have been kept unknown for political reasons.

campaigned to get your sympathy. She was said to have been very beautiful. Think over what men have done in the past for lovely women and then blame me if you can for doubting her repentance."

"I can't blame you," Trent said slowly. "It seems a trait of human nature to try and keep people down rather than to help them. What do you know about her, Mr. Hill?"

"I am told she is an aristocrat talking a dozen languages and used to all the ways of high society. She is said to dress beautifully and talk with a slight foreign accent. There was something unforgettable about her. I think it was her eyes. What color are her eyes?"

"A deep brown, almost black," said Anthony Trent promptly.

"Trent," said Hill smiling, "they're as green as jade and you know it."

"Few people see color in the same way," Trent reminded him.

"But few confound green and brown. Be frank with me. Why should I believe that the 'Countess'—I think that is what the police call her—wants to go straight?"

Anthony Trent's face grew sterner. There was a curiously dominating personality about the man. Mr. Hill admitted.

"Heaven may rejoice over the salvation of a sinner," he said, "but the world evidently does not. I'll prove what I say. Yesterday afternoon I saw her. She had no prospect ahead but drudgery. So I tempted her with relative luxury. I told her I would have that diamond there cut in half and give her a hundred thousand dollars for her share of it. I begged her to take it. I reminded her of the life woman-convicts lead in our barbarous prisons. She turned the opportunity down cold. I tell you if ever the devil was watching for a soul there was his chance. Literally she wouldn't hear of it. Her one idea is to make reparation."

"Was it fair to tempt her?" Hill asked.

"I can never fully explain to you just why I did it. One of the reasons was I wanted to assure myself that what I believed was true. I don't think I ever suffered more than when I was trying to shake her resolve."

"There was a new tenderness in his voice which Mr. Hill did not miss. "I don't think I've ever felt prouder than when she turned my proposition down and thought me a renegade."

"You must take an uncommon interest in this brown-eyed lady," the former ambassador said slowly.

"I do," Trent admitted, "that's why I'm here."

"I might point out," said the other, "that you have put your head in the mouth of a lion perfectly able to snap it off close to the collarbone if he chooses. It's true you have the diamond in your pocket for the moment, but what's to hinder me from ringing a bell and having you and it seized?"

"If you observe," said Anthony Trent, "you will see I am occupying a position of strategic advantage."

He was sitting in a leather armchair by the side of an open fire in which some oak logs were burning. "Hammer blows may not hurt diamonds but heat does. I have only to drop this into the flames and the Nizam's gem will never sparkle again. Carbon to carbon. It would distress me very much to have to do this, Mr. Hill."

"You are resourceful," the other admitted. After all, it was not likely that the man who had outwitted Michael Temesvar would be caught napping.

"I've got to be," Trent conceded. "What is the answer?"

"I don't want the diamond destroyed. I hate wanton waste. If I can't like to help you. You gave your government very important information during a period of unrest after the war. Some consideration is due to you. If I can arrange the matter that is the factor upon which I shall count. But remember this, Anthony Trent. You are using your credit to pay the debts of some one else. I ask you is it worth while?"

"It is," said Trent quickly.

"When do you leave Washington?"

"As soon as I get your answer. I'm hoping to go at noon tomorrow."

"All right. Call me up here tonight between twelve and half past. I'll give you my private telephone number. What's this?" he demanded, as Trent thrust the little chamois leather bag into his hands.

"You'd better keep it," said Trent.

"Aren't you inclined to be overconfident?" Mr. Hill demanded. "You can't put it in the fire now."

Find Canoe Belonging to Age of Bronze

A boat, tied to its landing wharf for 3,000 years, has been found buried under six feet of peat in an ancient bog in upper Swabia, according to Dr. Oscar Paret, a Stuttgart archeologist. It is a dugout canoe about fifteen feet long, hollowed out of the trunk of a giant oak. The sides, Doctor Paret says, were shaved down to a surprising thinness. Several paddles were found in it. A number of earthen vessels and bronze objects found in the turf around it date the boat as of the Bronze age, about 1000 B. C., contemporary with the siege of Troy and the reign of Solomon in Jerusalem.

The boat was found at the end of one of three long wharves which ran back to the vicinity of the remains of a number of huts. Apparently there was once a village on the edge of the bog, on solid ground separated from the open water of the lake by a wide, marshy margin, which could be crossed only by these causeways.

When the village site was abandoned, the vegetation in the bog and the lake continue to grow until the lake disappeared and the piling up of the dead leaves and stems buried all the works of the ancient men who lived there and used to go fishing in their dugout canoes.

Far-Fetched Reminder

Brother and sister were sitting on the creek bank, fishing. Sister threw out her line with a new bait and it became entangled in some brush. She at once appealed for aid in recovering it. Brother drew it in, dragging some debris with it.

"Where's the jigger?" she asked.

"The what?" from he, who had not noticed the floater was gone.

"The—er—what you may call it, the—oh, you know, the Irish county."

"Oh, the cork!"

"Yes, yes," she replied, "that's it."

SANDWICH FILLINGS

There is no season of the year when sandwiches are not in order. Sandwich filling, like soup, may be made out of almost anything which is edible.

Water cress grows on the banks of running brooks and even in cold weather, if one looks for it, it may be found green and palatable. It makes a most piquant sandwich filling; season with olive oil, salt, a bit of pepper and lemon juice, with a pinch of sugar and lay on the buttered bread.

Pepper Filling.—Chop green peppers that have been cut into halves and the seeds and fiber removed, simmer for ten minutes in a tablespoonful of butter. Season with salt and set aside to cool. Spread on buttered bread.

Dutch or cottage cheese, made smooth with cream and seasoned with chopped onion, chives, green pepper, nuts or chopped cherries, will make a variety of sandwiches.

Chopped almonds, maple sugar scraped fine, chopped nuts, mixed with enough thick cream to make a filling to spread.

Grated horseradish, thick cream, a bit of lemon juice; spread on whole wheat bread, buttered.

Cooked tongue, spread with mustard, after cutting into very thin slices.

Corned beef, spread with mustard, thin slices of roast beef, dressed with tabasco or Worcestershire sauce.

Hard-cooked eggs chopped and mixed with chopped watercress, melted butter, a pinch of mustard, salt, and a dash of cayenne.

Swiss cheese cut into very thin slices, placed between slices of buttered bread and toasted.

American cheese, grated and mixed with cream, a dash of cayenne, spread on buttered bread and fried in a little butter on both sides.

Thin slices of banana dressed with French dressing, laid on buttered bread.

Chopped raisins, nuts and a little orange juice to soften.

Chopped figs or dates with a few nuts, a pinch of cinnamon or cloves.

Casserole Foods.

The average housewife of today is looking for every possible labor saving device which she can use economically.

The casserole has much to recommend it. It may be placed in a moderate oven with its contents and dismissed from the mind until serving time.

There is no limit to the possibility of casserole foods. Some one is thinking up something new every day.

Chestnuts en Casserole.—Remove the shells from three cupfuls of chestnuts, put them into a casserole and cover with three cupfuls of highly seasoned chicken stock. Cover and cook in a slow oven for three hours. Thicken the stock with flour and butter cooked together and serve hot from the casserole.

Lamb en Casserole.—Have three steaks cut from a leg of lamb. Put into a hissing hot frying pan to sear the surface and hold in the juices. Remove from the pan, brush with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and put into a casserole. Add one cupful of potatoes cut into cubes, one cupful of string beans, one-half cupful of carrots cut into cubes or strips, three slices of onion, two cupfuls of stewed and strained tomatoes thickened with two tablespoonsful of butter and flour well mixed together. Cook until the vegetables are soft. Serve from the casserole.

Cassole of Castelnau.—This historical dish is prepared thus: Soak a quart of lima beans over night, stew them in the same water until bubbling, then set aside for an hour. Drain the beans, season and add boiling water and cook until nearly done. Put two cupfuls of cold cooked chicken or duck, the drained beans, one sliced onion, one-half cupful of strained tomato, one quart of broth and a teaspoonful of any good meat sauce into a casserole. Bake one hour; uncover, sprinkle with bread crumbs and a little chopped parsley; brown and serve.

Wild Duck en Casserole.—Prepare the duck for roasting, brown in a little butter in a frying pan, then place in the casserole with an onion and a few stalks of celery in each duck. Add a cupful of small onions, two cupfuls of carrots cut into small balls, and two cupfuls of potatoes cut into large balls; add plenty of seasoning and cover tightly. Cook until the vegetables are tender, then serve the duck on a hot platter garnished with the vegetables and hot wild rice, boiled and served with the duck.

Then the Fight Began.

Mr. Sun is driving the snow away pretty quickly."

"Well," said Mr. Giant, "I will come with great pleasure."

Then Billie Brownie went off to ask the Gnomes if they would have a snowball fight.

Peter Gnome and the other Gnomes thought it would be a very jolly idea, and Mr. Giant began to sing:

Hurry, Gnomes, and do not wait,
If we do we may be late,
For the snow is going fast,
But we can have a fight at last.

They all laughed at this for it sounded as though they were all so anxious to fight, and their fight was such a jolly snowball game and frolic. The Gnomes hurried into their winter suits, which were decorated with tiny icicles.

When the Gnomes and Mr. Giant and Billie Brownie reached Brownie-land, the Brownies had made two fine forts, and at one side was a good seat made of snow with a high back.

"This is for the judge," they said, and Mr. Giant took his place.

The snowballs had been made by the waiting Brownies and an even number were put in each fort.

The Brownies took one fort and the Gnomes the other, and just as it was getting so close and exciting Mr. Giant could hardly see who was winning. Mr. Sun came out stronger than ever and said, laughing:

"I declare peace." So the snowball fight ended on another day when the snow didn't melt so quickly!

England's Smallest School

There might be difficulty in deciding which is the biggest school in England, but there can be no doubt about which is the smallest.

At Wasdale Head church school there are only four pupils.

Wasdale Head is a well-known climbing center in Cumberland. In this lovely but lonely place there once lived more people, and 50 children attended the school. Now only a handful of folk dwell in this remote parish.

The children do not go to their teacher; she comes to them from Nether Wasdale, a stiff five miles' walk. In heavy snowstorms she cannot come, and at the best of times the school is only open three days a week.

Another unique thing about the school is that all the children attending it belong to one home.

A Kicking Stunt

When you feel so satisfied that you have nothing to kick about just try this stunt

Draw an L-shaped line on the floor, put your right heel inside the angle and take three steps forward, always placing one foot directly in front of the other with the heels and toes in contact. Next put an empty matchbox at the end of the foremost foot, the left, then bring your right foot back to its original position in the angle. Now try to kick over the matchbox with your left foot without touching the floor, and bring it back beside the right.

BROWNIES AND GNOMES

Billie Brownie put on his soft, white furry suit and his white hat which made him look just like a round snowball himself, and said:

"I'm going to ask Peter Gnome to get the rest of his followers together so we can have the first snowball fight of the season."

"Splendid," they all cried.

Billie Brownie had not walked very far along when he passed Mr. Giant's Cave.

"I think I will ask him to come and judge the fight," said Billie.

He took a large stone and rapped on the door of the Cave three times.

Of course the door of the Cave was really nothing but an opening—but Mr. Giant always called it his front door.

"Who's there?" cried a great deep voice.

"Billie Brownie."

"Come in," said the Giant, and in Billie Brownie walked.

"Good morning," he said, making a low bow.

"Good morning," replied Mr. Giant. "I've come to see if you would act as judge at the snowball fight we're to have today."

"We'll have to hurry up though, as

Mr. Sun is driving the snow away pretty quickly."

"Well," said Mr. Giant, "I will come with great pleasure."

Then Billie Brownie went off to ask the Gnomes if they would have a snowball fight.

Peter Gnome and the other Gnomes thought it would be a very jolly idea, and Mr. Giant began to sing:
